(PRWEB) April 9, 2006 -- The Ascoli Calcio 1898 SpA, Serie A professional football club, has recently adopted a policy aimed at recruiting talented young soccer players to increase the overall technical level of its youth sector. The Ascoli Calcio youth sector is seen by the club officials as a fundamental resource to assure a stable insertion of young players into the first team.

With this vision in mind, Ascoli Calcio began the project “Ascoli Soccer Academy”, whose technical and organizational management is assigned, exclusively throughout the world, to EduKick Italy partner, the Italian Football Academy (IFA). IFA is an Italian football company specializing in professional football/soccer scouting and the organization of youth sector management for professional Italian soccer clubs. IFA relies heavily on EduKick, Inc. to promote these Italian based soccer programs and secure clients from North America and around the world

This Ascoli Soccer Academy project has the goal to enrich the Ascoli Calcio youth sector with young soccer talent (both Italian youth players and foreign youth players that attend EduKick Italy programs) and in future, after a gradual and hard technical training, to insert the best of these players into the club’s first team.

Ascoli Calcio 1898 SpA has committed the technical and organizational management of “Ascoli Soccer Academy” solely to IFA (Italian Football Academy), a company that is credited and appreciated for its reliability and specialized professionalism in scouting players worldwide and in the organization of youth sectors for professional clubs. IFA, a valued EduKick partner, most recently managed the youth sector of Italian professional club, AC Perugia. IFA's technical director, Bruno Redolfi, an author of three different football tactics (coaching) books and one of Italy’s most respected technical coaches, has also worked previously with Italian professional club, AC Parma for five seasons and before that with the Italian Soccer Federation.

The Academy has its headquarter in the centre of Italy, in Umbria, between Perugia and Assisi. The choice of hosting our EduKick Italy – IFA/Ascoli Master Program in these two cities has been binding for the presence of our affiliated Italian High School in Assisi and our affiliated Italian University in Perugia (the academic institutions where the IFA/Ascoli Master year-long soccer boarding school players attend).
