

Soccer Schools Provide Soccer Players Unique Experience to Travel Abroad and Sharpen Soccer Skills

Soccer players around the world can attend full-year and half-year academic soccer schools to sharpen their soccer skills while having a unique travel experience abroad through programs offered by EduKick, a leading soccer schools touring company.

(PRWEB) October 26, 2006 -- Soccer players around the world can attend full-year and half-year academic soccer schools to sharpen their soccer skills while having a unique travel experience abroad through programs offered by EduKick, a leading soccer schools touring company. The EduKick academic soccer schools program allows soccer players to travel abroad, learn about foreign cultures, and train with professional soccer coaches in venues worldwide.

Male and female soccer players between the ages of 14 and 24 can attend soccer schools through the EduKick program. The EduKick philosophy is about placing equal emphasis on education and soccer. The soccer schools are designed for competitive players that aspire towards playing collegiate and/or professional levels of soccer.

EduKick's soccer schools offer both high school and university level soccer boarding school programs in countries such as Italy, Brazil, England, Spain, and more. The soccer school programs coincide with the regular academic year.

"We are very impressed with EduKick's soccer school program," said Richard Hough, father of EduKick/Blackburn Rovers Boarding School player Neil Hough. "Our son is currently enrolled in an EduKick year-long football course and it's everything EduKick promised and much more! My son is receiving quality professional soccer training daily and the Football Studies course at the college is just perfect for him."

Enrollment is now open for the second term, January through June 2007, and EduKick is accepting applications for the Italy, Spain, England, and Brazil soccer schools. The France soccer school begins in September 2007 and features former French national team coach Michel Hidalgo.

Visit www.EduKick.com or call 866-338-5425 to:

- * Find more information about EduKick soccer schools
- * Get tuition pricing information
- * Receive a special offer by mentioning this press release

About EduKick, Inc.:

EduKick, Inc., a leading soccer schools touring company, offers soccer players a unique opportunity to travel abroad while receiving high quality soccer training from professional soccer trainers. EduKick believes that young soccer players can reach their full potential and learn about other cultures through their programs and training camps. They are located in Oakville, Ontario, Canada, and Chicago, Illinois, USA.

Press Release Promotion provided by Xeal Inc.

###

Contact Information

Joey Bilotta

EduKick, Inc.

<http://www.edukick.com/>

866-338-5425

Online Web 2.0 Version

You can read the online version of this press release here.

News Image

